Once Messaging Bundle subscription is added to account, subscription and charges will renew automatically every 30 days. If you do not have sufficient funds in your account at the time of renewal, messages will be billed at the rates in your Plan. Once sufficient funds are added, your subscription and charges will be renewed, and you will be assigned a new renewal date that is 30 days later.

Upon unsubscribing from a Messaging Bundle, you will still have use of that bundle until its expiration date. If you re-subscribe before the expiration date, the original bundle will resume and you will not be billed until the expiration date. If you re-subscribe after the original bundle's expiration date, a new bundle will be provisioned and you will be billed at that time.

You can subscribe to only one Messaging Bundle at a time. If you have a Messaging Bundle and try to change to or add another one, the original bundle will drop off your account at its expiration date, and the subscription and charges for the new bundle will begin on the date the bundle is added.
